SEVEN ASK FOR $30,000 OF FUND

Institutions And Organizations Present Figures To Executive Committee of Kingston Community Chest—Boy Scouts Ask As Much As Benedictine Sanitarium And Salvation Army.

Seven organizations and institutions in the city made requests Friday night, at the city hall to the executive committee of the Kingston Community Fund for sums aggregating over $30,000. A majority of the requests were in writing with financial statements and budgets appended. These requests will be considered by the executive committee at a later meeting after which a report will be made to the directors of the Fund Association when final action will be taken. The seven organizations who seek to enter the Community Chest together with the amounts required are as follows:

| Benedictine Sanitarium | $5,000 |
| Industrial Home | 6,000 |
| Y. M. C. A. | 8,000 |
| Salvation Army | 5,000 |
| Boy Scouts | 5,000 |
| State Charities Aid | 600 |
| Girl Scouts | 500 |

The meeting of the executive committee was presided over by Mayor Canfield. A communication from Judge Joseph M. Fowler stated that the tuberculosis hospital did not desire to enter the fund, having sufficient money for this year by reason of the sale of Christmas seals and donations from the Limit Club.

Mayor Canfield also stated that he had been informed by Judge James A. Betts, president of the board of directors of the Kingston City Hospital, that the hospital had sufficient money for this year, and thus did not desire to participate in the campaign.

The first claim for entry in the chest was that of the Benedictine Sanitarium represented by the Very Rev. Dean John J. Hickey. Dean Hickey after giving a brief resume of the work done at the Sanitarium since its founding and of its contemplated improvements, asked for $7,500. The Sanitarium, he explained, had never received financial support from the city, had no donations or bequests, and had only asked the public on one occasion, three years ago, for money, yet by wonderful economy had been able to do its work.

Mayor Canfield called Dean Hickey's attention to the fact that this year the Sanitarium would receive between $2,500 and $3,000 from the city for the pay of poor patients, and in view of this asked if the Sanitarium would not be satisfied with $5,000 from the Community Fund.

Dean Hickey replied that that amount would be satisfactory, that the Sisters would appreciate any amount which was given to them. He said that the amount received would determine the extent of internal work which the Sanitarium contemplated doing this year.

Miss Whitaker speaking for the Industrial Home asked for $6,000. This institution received $5,000 from the War Chest last year. In explaining the increase, Miss Whitaker stated that it had been necessary to raise the salary of the matron $15 a month, that they had been compelled to secure the services of a woman night patrol at $45 a month, and that the laundress had demanded a raise.

The Y. M. C. A. through its general secretary, M. S. Safford, asked for $8,250, which was later raised to $8,900. Capt. Young of the Salvation Army asked for $5,000. According to a budget prepared by him the expenses of the local corps for the coming year will be over $6,500. The Home for the Aged was not represented, and it was not known whether that institution would make a claim. The Home for the Aged had been of the opinion that it had sufficient funds to run the institution for five years, but after an inspection of the building, it was determined that $6,000 would have to be sent to make necessary repairs. This will encroach considerably on the fund held by the board. However after making it known that they had enough money for some time, the board of directors hesitated at making an appeal or a request for funds.

Scout Executive Muhlemann asked for $5,000 for the work of the Boy Scouts in this city. For city and county work, Mr. Muhlemann explained, the Scouts will need $3,000. The money is expended for the salary of the executive, traveling expenses, the national council, summer camp and other incidentals. The Boy Scouts received a similar amount last year from the War Chest.

Prof. M. J. Michael, representing the Kingston Library Association, asked that an extension of time be given that institution. Mr. Michael said that the association had asked for a hearing before the Finance, Ways and Means committee of the common council in order to present a plan for additional support from the city. The library now receives $2,000 from the city and must have $2,000 more in order to keep going. If the common council grants this, no request will be presented to the Community Fund.

Admiral F. J. Hawthorn appeared for the State Charities Aid, and asked for $500 for this year. The Girl Scouts were represented by Miss Davis, county agent, who has requested to be the executive for the year. In making her request for $500, Miss Davis ex-

UKRAINE JEWS TO GET RELIEF

Commission of American Jews To Accept State Department Permission To Go In At Own Risk and Suffer Starving and Disease-Ridden Camps.

New York, April 24.—Medical aid, food and clothing will be rushed to the starving Jewish people of the Ukraine and Russia from American Jewish relief funds, following the state department's announcement that it had granted permission for the Joint Distribution Committee to enter Russia at its own risk.

Following application by Louis Marshall, chairman of the American Jewish Relief Committee, to the State Department, for permission to send the commission into Russia to fight famine and typhus which is killing thousands of men, women and children, Frank L. Polk, under-secretary of state, gave the government's permission with these conditions:

1.—The commission's purpose is solely to extend relief to the suffering and it will take no supplies, which it seized, might be diverted for military use.

2.—As the United States government maintains no representatives in, and has no relations with this territory, it will be in no position to extend protection to the commission and it must go on its own risk.

3.—In a general way it is the desire of the state department to facilitate the distribution of relief to innocent sufferers in Russia, but every precaution must be taken against the misuse of supplies furnished.

The Joint Distribution Committee, which is the relief disbursing agency for the American Jewish Relief Committee and its allied organizations accepted these conditions and arrangements are now under way in Poland, under the direction of Dr. Julius Goldman, European Director-General of American Jewish Relief and Dr. Boris D. Bogen, director in Poland to send the Ukrainian Commission, consisting of Judge Harry Fisher of Chicago and Prof. Israel Friedlander, Max Pine and Maurice Kress of New York into the Ukraine and Russia.

Blacked at every gateway to the Ukraine by political and economic conditions, the commission will now undertake its relief work, under the permission granted it by the state department, although the commissioners assume all responsibilities for the dangers they will encounter in a country in which severe fighting is still going on.

The Russian government has announced that it will afford the commission full protection while administering relief in its territories, according to newspaper dispatches from Copenhagen.

When the commission enters the Ukraine and Russia it will have been the first American relief agency to function there.

Prince Reaches Melbourne.

Melbourne, Australia, April 24.—The Prince of Wales arrived at Auckland, New Zealand, today on the battleship Benbow.

PRODUCTION OF "EVERYWOMAN" WAS FLAWLESS

Despite the unfavorable weather conditions Friday evening about a thousand people gathered in the high school auditorium to witness the presentation of the morality play, "Everywoman," by the members of the senior class.

They were well rewarded for, from the minute the curtain opened at 8:15 until it closed on the final act, there was not a false word or mistake made by the actors and actresses. The players showed that they had forgotten themselves for the time being and had gotten into the body and spirit of the play. There has not been a play in Kingston in some time involving so many characters and which has been presented by amateurs in such a clever and praiseworthy manner.

Of course, there was not the magnificent scenery that the play demands, but there were most of the important sections, parts of which were made at the school. However, the audience did not seem to pay much attention to the scenery surrounding the actors as those on the stage spoke and acted so well that on-lookers were forced to keep their eyes continually on the center of activities.

"Nobody," a tall, black looking man in a long gray hooded shroud began the play with a short monologue. John Krom, who had this part exhibited unusual oratorical skill as well as dramatic skill. His part was a very difficult one, but he proved his ability to handle hard things well.

Youth, Beauty and Modesty were the next to appear on the stage, dancing in through a window. These parts were taken by the Misses Helen McNelis, Zaida Neher and Kathryn McDermott.

Everywoman followed the dancers. Miss Bernice Dangremont, who personified this part, exhibited some clever acting and took her part with the skill of a professional. She deserves much credit for the wonderful manner in which she led the rest of the players.

James Carroll as Flattery was the next to appear after Everywoman. Then came Truth, a witch on crutches, in the person of Ruth Scott, who carried out her part very cleverly.

The part of King Love, the first was taken by George Allen and worked in well with the rest of the acting.

Bluff and Stuff, namely William Murray and Louis Benson, two theatre managers, took charge and gruffly and curtly discussed the talents of their different actors and their chorus. To prove his statements about the chorus, Bluff called out the chorus of gay, happy, bright, sprightly beauties who danced and sang in a most praiseworthy style.

Time, the next actor on the scene, was David Schoenfeld, who by his slow movements proved that behind the stage, "Time does not fly but crawls."

Wealth and Witless, the parts taken by Joseph McDermott and Fred Port, respectively were well acted. Mr. McDermott simulated the millionaire as if he had been one for some time, while Mr. Port turned into the personage of a haughty English nobleman in a night.

Conscience was played by Miss Laura Bailey. This part included several vocal solos with which Miss Bailey greatly pleased her audience.

Frank Quinn, as Passion, played his part exceptionally well. Paul Snyder and Leo Turner, as servants, were right on the job with the polite yet stiff manners.

Puff, Age, Green, Self and Vanity helped to liven things up a bit at the banquet. These parts were taken by Lawrence Goldstein, Robert Gumaer, Elizabeth Burroughs, Margaret Wood and Nancy Judkins respectively.

Muriel Oliver, in a robe and hat of flame red, personified Vice. Maurice Davenport and Raymond Contant took the parts as policemen. Clifford Sears, as Charity, a minister, displayed skill in handling his part.

The following is a brief summary of the play: Nobody is the first to appear and give the prologue for Act I. Soon three beautiful girls dance in through a window and, continuing to dance, sing a song which introduces them as Youth, Beauty and Modesty. Everywoman appears and is told by Flattery that King Love is waiting for her and tells her the way to get to him. Youth suggests that Everywoman look for him in the play-house of the big cities. Modesty and Youth try to dissuade Everywoman, but she is unmoved by their advice and starts on a pilgrimage for love. Truth vanishes when Flattery speaks.

KELLY'S BODY NOT SENT YET

Earlier in the week Undertaker E. A. Kelly received word from the Red Cross in New York that the body of John Francis Kelly of High Falls who died overseas with the A. E. F. was being sent home for burial and would arrive that day in Kingston.

As the body failed to arrive Undertaker Kelly went to New York Friday and made an investigation which disclosed the fact that the body of the soldier received in New York earlier in the week was that of another Kelly and that the grave of the High Falls boy in France had not been touched yet, and it would be several months before the body could be taken up and sent home. The Undertaker county hero is survived by a widowed mother who resides at High Falls.

Love, in the personage of Wealth, who through his selfish intentions has gained a small claim on her.

She becomes angry with him and orders that he be shown to the door. But, after discovering the death of Beauty and the growing weakness of Youth, she recalls Wealth to her side.

They eventually agree to agree and dance hilariously off the stage at the close of the act.

The fourth act is introduced by Nobody with his brief prologue.

Then, the festivities of a real New Year's night on the gay White Way began. The extraordinary gaiety and hilarity of the scene, sets off the pitiful condition of Everywoman, who finds herself down and out, financially, but still on her pilgrimage of love.

Passing the cafe, and hearing music and the voice of Wealth, she decides to try and regain him. Youth attempts to dissuade her and the two quarrel.

Time appears and takes Youth out, apparently with an intention of ending her life.

Once more the scene becomes gay with throngs paying homage to Wealth. This part includes an excellent vocal solo by Frank Quinn as Passion.

Wealth disperses the crowd and meeting Everywoman reminds her of the pitiful condition she is in. Laughing at the promise he had made to her on the night of the banquet, he (bidding her stand by) gayly flaunts off with Vice.

The scene is ended with the appearance of the bird, bearing Youth. This causes Everywoman to discover her utter lack of companionship.

However, she makes up her mind to follow Truth, who will lead her to King Love.

Nobody introduces the fifth act with his prologue. Everywoman discovers her bad mistake in leaving her old home, finding that Love was really there and had been there throughout her residence in the place. She finds Love in the personage of the poor son of Mother Truth.

The play was brought to a most successful close by the epilogue delivered by "His Highness," Nobody.

Between the fourth and fifth acts John Krom publicly presented Miss Noone with a beautiful bouquet of roses, expressing the appreciation of the class for the excellent work which she had done in coaching the members of the cast.

Miss Noone, after recovering from the unusual surprise, fittingly responded.

The senior class gratefully acknowledges the courtesy of Stock & Cordts, Gregory & Company, the Kingston Gas and Electric Company, and Mr. Gildersleeve, of the Opera House, for the loan of furniture and properties.

The complete cast of characters in the play, in the order in which they appear, is:

| Reformed Church in the United States | 2,136,031 |
| Church of the United Brethren in Christ | 16,916,085 |
| Here is a summary of how the budget has been divided up: | |

"First—Foreign missions, $107,661,158.

"Within that great sum is included the occupying of the entire field of the world. There is an appeal in this division of financial objective to any man or woman in America. It safeguards diplomacy; it provides for expanding business. Someone said that if we are going to make the world safe, we must annex the world spiritually."

"There are medical missions. "In this item there is health education; there is the teaching of democracy; there is the care of lepers; there is the elevation of women; there is the establishing and maintaining of colleges and universities; there is the greater part of the whole educational system in some sections of the world. This, and much else, is in our first division."

"Second—The home field, $102,949,037.

"Within this classification comes the meeting of the problem of the city. There is an immense Americanization program in it; there is the program for meeting the problem of congestion, and lack of sanitation and poor housing conditions; there is the stabilizing of the great mass of people who are now stirred by unrest; there is the problem of the colored people who have migrated to the north; there is the grave problem of migratory labor which is seasonal, moving from one section of the country to the other; there is the rural surplus which discloses the excessiveness and duplication that is involved in much of the rural sections of the country and which proposes, for the action of the denominations constructive rural programs. This, and much more is under this home survey."

"Third—American education $78,877,431.

"There is included here much that is required to meet the needs of our Christian colleges which are today recognized as the foremost agencies in meeting atheistic socialism and agitation which comes from lack of mental poise."

"Fourth—Religious Education $3,521,525.

"Here is the teaching of the principles of Jesus in the younger generation in an expanding and comprehensive way."

"Fifth—Hospitals and Homes $1,116,463.

"There is no field of the province of the Christian church to continue to minister to the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to care for the sick and destitute."

"Sixth—Ministerial Relief and retirement funds $20,510,200.

"This is a matter of simple justice. Former or later the whole world turns for its ministrations to the minister. In time of sorrow and distress, he is the missionary of comfort. He it is who stands shoulder to shoulder with the teachers and the philanthropists, in the American community and throughout the world, for better conditions of life and for higher standards of character."

KINGSTON'S OPPORTUNITY IS STILL OPEN BUT QUICK ACTION IS NEEDED

Progress Toward Raising $25,000 Investment to Bring Big Concern Here May Keep Matter Open Day or Two but Danger of Losing It Is Very Real—New Owners of Van Wagenen's Subscribe.

Is Kingston going to secure or to lose the company which is ready to come here and employ a minimum of 200 men with a minimum payroll of $300,000?

Although substantial progress has been made since the announcement by President Charles R. O'Connor of the Chamber of Commerce that all that is now required to bring this company here is the guaranteeing of a second mortgage loan of $25,000 in addition to the bank mortgage, the amount so far subscribed toward this loan does not yet approach the sum needed.

President O'Connor said this morning "Much hard work remains to be done and done quickly. We believe the progress made will hold the matter open until Monday or perhaps Tuesday. Prompt action, however, is absolutely necessary and there is danger that this industry will be lost to us."

One very pleasing thing in connection with the canvass for subscriptions for this loan was the action of the Ross Stores, Inc., who within 24 hours after they had acquired and taken possession of the L. B. Van Wagenen store, voluntarily and without solicitation subscribed $1,000 toward this loan. The subscription was made through Louis W. Roskopf, president of the Ross Stores, Inc.

N. Y. PARADERS GET OVATION

Thousands of Plain Citizens in Overalls and Old Clothes, Kept Off Fifth Avenue by Merchants' Association, Pass Through Eighth Avenue and Broadway Amid Applauding Throngs.

New York, April 24.—A raggedy patch work army of plain citizens, long suffering from the high cost of clothing, staged an economy show in New York today which played to packed galleries along the curbs and drew more heartfelt applause than falls to the lot of any theatrical star.

Shunted off Fifth avenue—where clothing is so high that some times they don't even price tag it—thousands of persons donned overalls, old clothes, patched clothes, calico and gingham and paraded down Eighth avenue for thirty blocks and then up Broadway for the same distance, while other thousands cheered them for their spirit.

There was a fair sprinkling of women among the marchers in the strangest pageant New York ever saw.

The Fifth Avenue Merchants' Association protested against holding an "economy" parade down that lane of smart shops and expensive establishments so the undaunted volunteer marchers took their show over to the more sober confines of Eighth avenue and to Broadway—where anything goes.

Hundreds of municipal employees were in the marching ranks.

The senate by a vote of 29 to 20 refused to discharge committee to permit a vote on the floor on the Anti-Saloon League enforcement bills.

WARSHIPS ON WAY TO MEXICO

Washington, April 24.—Two American warships are steaming to the western coast of Mexico today with authority to land troops, if necessary, to protect the lives and property of American citizens, whose interests have been menaced by the rapidly growing revolution against the Carranza government.

Secretary Daniels announced today that the orders to the commanders of the U. S. S. Salem and U. S. S. McCawley were:

"Observe and report." "Issue orders to land troops if the situation warranted were not necessary, the secretary stated.

THE ANSWER

Jess—Why, I thought he was married.
Tom—So is he.

Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, has arrived at Anadir, Siberia, according to a dispatch from Nome, Alaska. For more than nineteen months nothing had been heard of the noted explorer and his shipmates who started for the North Pole in the schooner Maud. The last heard from the party was in September, 1918, when the Maud took oil at Dixon Island, in the White Sea. The vessel then sailed off to the northwest through the rapidly freezing Arctic. The purpose of Amundsen's trip to the Arctic was not primarily to reach the North Pole, but to make scientific observations and to study the drift of the polar ice, and oceanic conditions in the far north.

The hall was especially attractive in its light, apple green decorations, suggestive of the longed-for spring, and the remarkably handsome and artistic gowns of the women set the dancers as beautiful flowers in the spring-green setting. The music, furnished by Shurtz's orchestra, more than delighted the guests, some hundred in number. During the evening a delicious supper was served at small tables, making for a particularly genial social feature of the gathering. CONDENSED CLASSICS

By SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

Condensed by ALAN G. CRANE

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was born on May 22, 1859, in Edinburgh. His father, Charles Doyle, was an artist of fantastic imagination. The boy went to Stonyhurst college, studied in Germany, and returned to take his degree at Edinburgh university in 1885. He was a ship's doctor for a few years, and then he went to the West Indies, and finally settled as a doctor in South Africa. His restless imagination found constant expression in short stories. Sherlock Holmes made his first appearance in "A Study in Scarlet" (1887) but won his immense popularity in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes." The original of the genius was Dr. Bell of Edinburgh university. The popular hero lived again in "The Memoirs of Sherlock Holmes," "The Hound of the Baskervilles," and "The Return of Sherlock Holmes." Dr. Doyle drew abundantly from historical sources for his novels and plays. "The White Company," a long romance, first introduced Sir Nigel as an old man. In 1905 his youth was portrayed in the book named for him. Conan Doyle served in a field hospital in the South African war, wrote two books in defense of the British army in the war, and was knighted in 1902. He has written a three-volume history of the great war. Sir Conan Doyle is a large, athletic man, who has never lost his enthusiasm for sports. His home in Sussex, England, is filled with trophies from many parts of the world. Tennis and cricket have kept him fit for his enormous literary undertakings.

Evil times fell upon England in the year 1348, when the great plague devastated the land. It was during this period that the story of Sir Nigel takes place.

The house of Loring, like many another noble family, felt the heavy hand of misfortune; for after the Barons' War and lawless with Waverley Abbey, the men of the church and the men of the law left nothing but the manor of Tilford for the remaining members of the family, Lady Ermyntre and her grandson Nigel.

Nigel Loring came of a race of heroes, his grandfather having fallen at the battle of Stirling, and his father in the sea fight of Stuy. Nigel, his veins thrilling with the blood of a hundred thrillers, was filled with the desire for adventure and combat; having been trained at the desire of his grandmother in skill at arms, and courage, he became also a daring rider. At times a fierce bitterness assailed Nigel at the thought of the wrongs done by the Abbot of Waverley, whom he believed had robbed the Lorings of much of their estate.

On the first day of May, the Festival of the Apostles Philip and James, consecration reigned at the Abbey, when it was found that a large pike had eaten the carp in Abbot John's fish pond, Nigel being accused of putting the pike in the pond. Abbot John and the priest, Brother Samuel, were in consultation upon the subject, when they were rudely interrupted by a buzz of excitement among the monks in the cloister. A white-faced brother flung open the door and rushing into the room cried, "Father Abbot, alas, alas, Brother John is dead, and the Devil is loose in the five virgate field."

Now what the brother called the "Devil" was a great yellow horse, held at the Abbey for the debt of his owner, Franklin Aylward; such a horse, it was said, was not to be found betwixt the Abbey and the King's stables at Windsor.

It was a sorry day that brought the horse to the Abbey, for no one there could be found who would or could ride him or conquer him; he had indeed nearly killed the Brother and the Subprior.

Abbot John and the monks, intent upon seeing, with their own eyes, this terrible creature, hurried down the stairs and gained the wall of the meadow, where looking over its top they beheld the magnificent horse standing fetlock deep in the meadow grass. Upon this wild scene there arrived riding his pony the young Squire Lorne, small of stature, but with muscles of steel, and a soul of fire; his face, though tanned with the weather, was delicate of feature. His whole appearance made him a mark for the sight of any passer-by, but at the first glance, the brown face set in its golden hair and beard, and the daring light of the quick, reckless, laughing eyes, made the one strong memory left behind.

The horse was at the moment trampling his latest victim and Nigel, springing from his pony, was over the wall and at battle with the creature, proving himself master. Some discussion arose among the monks as to the killing of the yellow horse, or the giving him to Nigel as a punishment; the last suggestion finally won, and Nigel proceeded to further subdue the horse. A formidable creature called "Tom."

The horse tried to unseat his rider, but Nigel held fast and at last they were over the four-foot gate and away. Then took place the most notable race ever known to that part of the world, and the author's description recording it is a gem worth reading; also it is the key to Nigel's whole character. A nearly forgotten ballad upon the subject has the following refrain:

"The Doe that sped on Blinde Head,
The Kestrel on the whide,
And Nigel on the Yellow Horse
Can leave the world behind."
After a long battle of wills, the horse was broken and conquered; he fell in the heather with a sobbing sigh, throwing his rider over his head stunned. The young Squire was first to recover and kneeling by the panting, overwrought horse, he gently passed his hand over the foam-flecked face, and the whinnying Pommers thrust his nose into the hollow of Nigel's hand.

"You are my horse, Pommers," Nigel whispered, and laid his cheek against the craning head. "I know you, Pommers, and you know me, and with the help of Saint Paul we shall teach some other folk to know us both."

The monks of Waverley Abbey held Nigel for debts and wrongs against them and he was hailed before the Abbot for trial, was judged guilty and sentenced to imprisonment; but when they would have restrained him, Nigel drew his sword, which angered the Abbot, who charged his bowman to draw his bow and defend holy church and her decrees. Tragedy was imminent, when Samkin Aylward, a famous archer, came to Nigel's rescue, at once attacking himself to the young Squire's service, and afterward following him into many dangers.

Into the midst now came a man whose appearance dominated the scene. This was the famous soldier, John Chandos, with a message to Nigel Loring. Said Chandos, "He who comes to seek the shelter of your roof is your liege lord and mine, the King's high majesty, Edward of England."

While a guest at Tilford Abbey, Chandos' stories filled the mind and heart of Nigel with a stronger desire than ever for adventure, and he begged to go as Chandos' Squire, under the standards of the King, Edward of England, to which Chandos assented.

Nigel made his arrangements for leaving home; they were few and simple, for he had only his Pommers, his loyal Sam Aylward, and at the last his long-wished-for suit of armor, and a small amount of gold.

There was, however, one visit must be made before leaving home, and that was to see Mary, the daughter of the old Knight of Duplin, living in the castle at Cosford. Mary of the grave eyes of brown looking bravely at the world; the one whom Nigel loved.

At the shrine of St. Catherine, Nigel and Mary said their farewells, and the young Squire vowed to perform three noble deeds of valor in her honor, ere he came to see his Mary again; but that no thought of her should stand twixt him and this honorable achievement.

Nigel sought constantly for some deed to perform and lesser ones came to hand frequently, but it was not until he was at Winsheisen, with Chandos, that his first great opportunity came. It was found that the plans of the attack upon the French at Calais by the Prince's army had been stolen, and it was suspected that a cunning, daring Frenchman, called the "Red Ferret," had taken them and was then already on his way across the Channel. Nigel started in pursuit with Aylward and other followers. After a long chase and a hard-fought battle, Nigel caught the Red Ferret and saved the English plans; but as his enemy was so gallant a man Nigel begged his life of the King and so saved him. He sent the Ferret to Mary at Cosford, with the message that the first deed was accomplished.

Nigel then stormed the famous castle of La Brohiniere, where lived the Knight called the "Butcher of Brohiniere," who was said never to let a prisoner escape alive from his castle. Here at great risk of his own life, Nigel rescued not only his man Sam Aylward and other comrades, but a young Frenchman who later, however, died, praising his rescuer. Then news of the second deed was sent to Mary at Cosford.

Nigel had followed on with John Chandos into Brittany when the third deed was found. There had been hot, furious fighting, and Nigel, riding Pommers, plunged forward, unseating and taking captive one of the enemy. Having the Frenchman at his mercy, Nigel might have killed him at once, or held him for ransom, but he had made a gallant fight, and out of admiration and pity the young Squire spared his life and let him go, only to discover later that he had had at his mercy none other than King John of France.

When the Prince heard the story from King John himself he exclaimed, "For my part I had rather have the honor this Squire has gathered, than all the richest ransoms of France." Whereupon the Prince with his sword touched Nigel's shoulder as he knelt before him, and said, "England has lost a brave squire and gained a gallant knight; may linger not, rise up, Sir Nigel." And a third message went to Mary.

Two months later Nigel arrived at Cosford, and kissing Mary's welcoming hand he said, "St. Catherine has brought me home."

Oldest Confession.
The greater part of black hound is derived from Spain, where it is made from the juice of the plant and mixed with starch to prevent it from melting in hot weather. The hound plant is a shrub that attains a height of three feet and it grows wild where its roots reach the water. It flourishes especially on the banks of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers.

Since the valley of the Euphrates contained one of the earliest civilizations in the world, the probability is that hound is about the oldest concoction in the world, and the fact which the boys and girls of today like so well was enjoyed by the youngsters of three thousand years ago.

"SAY UNCLE"

That's what Louis Armbrory, pawn-broker, said to beautiful Annabelle Lee. And beautiful Annabelle Lee, having nothing but an artistic temperament and a lot of pawn tickets, called him uncle and had the time of her life!

More or no! Nothing wrong at all. Just a little friendly partnership that landed Louis where he wanted to go socially and netted Annabelle big dividends in love from one Dicky Norton.

But the troubles they had! And the troubles they made! Wow! You'll gasp and laugh till your sides ache.

Wheeling a Lion.

Lions are not tempted, like other animals, to strict obedience to their trainer's commands by the offer of succulent foods. Practically every animal but the lion is taught to do what is wanted by giving it a reward every time it does it or makes an effort to, either a lump of sugar or a vegetable or a bit of fish or some other thing of which it is fond. This is impossible with the lion, as it eats only meat and is only allowed a certain amount of that. This increases the difficulty of the lion tamer.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 24, 1932.

The world war cost eight million lives and 200 billions in treasure, to say nothing of incalculable destruction of property. Yet those who precipitated the horror are now chuckling in glee and incubating new schemes because the fruits of the costly victory are being lost through the dissension and consequent inaction among the victors.

What the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina in the dark backward and abysm of time would not be welcome now, but it is permissible to quote Governor Bickett of the first named State on a phenomenon of the hour. "There is no good in the overall idea," says he, pointedly adding that it will only "run the price of overalls up to a figure that can not be paid by those who of necessity must wear them." He thinks it would be more useful to agree not to buy an automobile, or other things it is possible to do without, until prices are reduced.

THE UNCHAINED BEAST.

There are those who like to think and to say that evil is more or less accidental and has an imaginary rather than a real existence; that only when at bay and in the midst of hostile circumstance is human nature inclined toward what is actually vicious and criminal. This is a pleasing view, but it is not confirmed by the many startling events which from time to time are recorded among unusual conditions. What human nature is capable of can only be understood under unusual conditions because only then is it in a state of freedom. The usual condition of civilized life is one in which law and order prevail, checking and restraining at every point. Only when these restraints are removed is man free to reveal his real character, the fear of detection or punishment being then absent. The revelations under such circumstances have too often been such as to surprise and shock the better element of mankind.

Even in modern wars men previously supposed to be good in the main have shown themselves to be utterly savage at heart, proving that the veneer of civilization is often only skin deep, and that the fear of the law or the love of reputation, not the love of justice and mercy, restrains them in times of peace. Never was this innate savagery in greater numbers of men revealed in more stark and naked hideousness than in the record of German atrocities in the World War. It is true that "frightfulness" was a deliberate policy of Germany's war government, a policy based on the uncalculated assumption that the enemy could thus be terrorized and weakened, but "frightfulness" presupposed and required ready instruments in the form of savage-hearted soldiers, glad to be let loose and rendered free to follow where beastly instincts led.

A MEDIEVAL MONARCH.

Ex-Ambassador Gerard says that even before trouble arose between Austria and Serbia in 1914 the German Kaiser said in his presence that he expected to start something in a few weeks that would teach the common people to have a proper respect for their emperor. Mr. Gerard thought little of this at the time, he says, because it did not occur to him that William II really had the power to plunge the world into the miseries of war. There is evidence that long before 1914 William II thought he had that and every other power by "divine right"—or pretended to think so. It was this attitude on his part that prevented Germany from entering with other leading nations into binding agreements which civilization required. For example, Dr. Bern, the Kaiser's delegate at the Hague, spoke against the principle of arbitration on the ground that "a king holding his title by Divine right could not think of thus directing himself of an essential part of his sovereignty."

Dr. Bern said further that "Emperor William would not pledge himself to bow to the decisions of judges not appointed by himself on cases that have not arisen." No wonder we read that Dr. Bern "conducted his speech in a painful manner," and that after the assembly had caught its breath Sir Julian Pauncefote rose and intimated that the Kaiser's view of statecraft was "not altogether modern." Had he not been too diplomatic, he might have added that it was, in fact, quite medieval. It was made clear to most of those present that such a Kaiser ruling by "divine right" and opposed to arbitration in any form had better not send a representative to The Hague peace conference or other assemblage of enlightened modern statesmen.

K. H. S. BOYS TO WEAR OLD ONES

The first ones to take up the old clothes movement in Kingston are the boys of the Kingston High School. Friday afternoon after school all of the boys of the high school held a special assembly at the high school auditorium and at that time decided to join in the old clothes movement which is sweeping the country.

In taking up the movement the local boys decided that they would start an old clothes movement and not an overall club. Overall cost considerable money and for each pupil to buy overalls would increase the cost of that article, thus defeating the purpose of the movement, so it was decided that it should be old clothes.

Monday morning every one of the boys will appear at school in old clothes or, if they already have them, overalls.

The meeting Friday afternoon was in the nature of a secret session but the purpose of the meeting leaked out and became known all over town, so the boys will not spring a surprise when they walk into class rooms Monday morning.

Practically all of the boys agreed immediately to join in the old clothes movement and those who hesitated were in cases forcefully reminded that the cost of clothes must come down, and joined in the movement.

THE INTERCHURCH LUTHERAN WORLD MOVEMENT

What The $225,777,572 To Be Asked Next Week By Thirty Protestant Denominations Will Be Used For And An Outline Of The Program.

Beginning Sunday, April 25 and ending Sunday, May 2, thirty co-operating Protestant denominations are asking $225,777,572 for their educational, missionary and social service programs, the Interchurch World Movement being the agency of cooperation.

The Interchurch World Movement is a movement of the churches, by the churches, for the churches. It consists of the churches and their societies; it is governed and controlled by them; it is designed to promote their work.

Its object is to enable the Protestant Churches of the United States to contribute their due share toward the evangelization of the world by means of co-operation.

The Interchurch World Movement cannot, under its constitution, have anything to do with any movement designed to promote organic union among the churches.

Every denomination that joins the Interchurch Movement retains absolute autonomy and exercises absolute control over its own denominational policy. All of the participating denominations acting together through their representatives on the general committee, control the policies of the Interchurch Movement.

The movement, in fact, represents an alliance of churches which have come together because they can do more effectively in common a great many things that all of them have been in the habit of doing separately.

The function of the Interchurch World Movement is to provide the machinery for this co-operation.

The common tasks in which the participating churches plan to co-operate include the missionary undertakings of the churches at home and abroad; assistance to local churches; promotion of the spiritual ideals of stewardship, life service and the power of prayer; and such other church activities as education, the adequate support of the ministry and the provision and maintenance of hospitals and homes.

Co-operation in such an undertaking is a plain matter of efficiency.

There are thirty denominations participating in the Interchurch World Movement. It is obvious that a single comprehensive program, embracing the collective wisdom of all of these denominations, is going to get more efficient results at less expense than thirty different programs, each framed independently of all the rest.

By joining in a great united, simultaneous campaign, the participating churches will not only canvass their own constituency, they will canvass the whole Protestant constituency of the United States. They will not only receive their denominational contributions, but they will also share pro rata in the undesignated gifts.

It is not only the machinery of co-operation which the Interchurch Movement provides. Working in close co-operation with nearly a hundred denominational mission boards, it has also provided a body of accurate information regarding the world's needs on which the co-operating churches may base their programs.

The survey of religious conditions throughout the world is most comprehensive investigation of its kind ever undertaken.

It is more comprehensive than any denominational survey because its basis is geographic, not denominational.

It has surveyed areas which are as yet the business of no denomination. It has plotted out the unchurched areas in the United States and the unoccupied territories in foreign fields.

It is in a position to give to the denominations information concerning the distribution of churches, which is one of the outstanding features of the religious problem in America today.

It has collected a mass of data on the underpayment of pastors and the lack of efficiency that results from an absentee ministry.

Sunday schools, institutions of higher education, benevolent institutions, and various special problems in which the churches have a legitimate interest have all come within the scope of the Interchurch survey.

Through the machinery provided by the Interchurch World Movement it is possible also to put a more effective emphasis on the evangelistic message of the churches.

It is easier to conduct a campaign of stewardship or of life work or of evangelism pure and simple with thousands participating in the campaign than with hundreds. There is effectiveness in the mere weight of numbers, and there is force in the creation of a general atmosphere.

This applies to the note that will be struck at 2 p. m. on Sunday, April 25. At this hour all the members of all the churches participating in the Interchurch World Movement are asked to bow their heads for five minutes in silent prayer for the success of the great united simultaneous appeal of the churches, commencing at that moment, for the physical resources that will enable the forces of American Christianity to march forward to victory.

G. O. P. County Com. to Meet.

Notices have been mailed by John W. Echert, secretary, signed by Philip Ering, chairman, to the members of the Republican county central committee of Ulster county, that there will be a meeting of the said committee held at the county court house at Kingston on Wednesday, April 28, at 12 o'clock, noon (New York time), for the purpose of electing officers, adopting rules and regulations and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting. The members of the county central committee were elected on April 6.

The Citizens' Band will hold a rehearsal Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at the Elks' clubrooms.

LUTHERAN WORLD SERVICE DRIVE

Mass meetings, broadcast over the American continent, stressing the unbearable conditions of over 41,000,000 Lutherans in Europe, and the necessity of the Lutheran Church in America raising $1,800,000 for this world service, will be held April 24 to May 9.

"The spirit of these meetings will be a combination of those earliest of American gatherings, the New England town meetings of former days, and that romantic and fraternal canton gathering of Switzerland today," according to the Rev. A. J. Traver, of the Lutheran Bureau, who has immediate direction of this elaborate system of meetings under Dr. O. H. Paunkoke, director of publicity for the Lutheran world service campaign.

Two principal purposes will be evident in these meetings; first to give information as regards the European situation as it now is, which information will be derived from a continental survey made by a commission from the Lutheran Church in America.

And second, a straightforward appeal to the people on the basis of these facts, and these facts alone, to do the one manly and Christian thing, to relieve the suffering and restore the worship of the fellow Lutherans in Europe.

It has been so arranged that all the men speaking on the conditions in Europe are those who served on the commission making the survey of Europe. It is expected that after the two principal speakers have finished that the meeting will become an enthusiastic mass meeting, conducted in forum style.

Besides the mass meetings in the principal cities, a number of the Lutheran colleges throughout the country will hold mass meetings during the same week. Many of the state and independent institutions will also hold similar meetings, notably, the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor.

The actual world service campaign for this relief work will be the week immediately following, that is, May 9 to 16. It is not planned to have an actual collection of funds at these mass meetings, but it is planned to have each individual Lutheran called upon the week following.

Among the returned commissioners who will address these mass meetings are the Rev. George T. Ryhl of Madison, Wis., the Rev. S. C. Younger of Rock Island, Ill., the Rev. G. A. Pandey of Chicago and the Rev. Henry Jacob Schuh of Ohio.

JADED LEGISLATORS FEVERISHLY AT WORK AS SESSION CLOSES

Senate Passes Bills Barring Socialist Party--Soldier Bonus Bills Railroaded Through--Thompson Milk Commission Bill Beaten.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., April 24.—Today is the last legislative day of one of the stormiest sessions of the legislature in recent years.

Working feverishly to wind up the business of the dying session, the leaders cannot hope to clear the decks for final adjournment before some time after noon tomorrow. Officially the session ended at noon, when the clocks were stopped, not to be started again until the announcement of adjournment sine die. Members of both houses were worn out at dawn today. Work of the session will probably end Sunday afternoon.

Some of the most important questions which confronted the 1920 session were decided in the closing hours. Chief among them was passage by the senate early this morning of the two Walters-Fearon bills aimed at barring further participation of the Socialist party or its members from politics in this state.

Both houses rushed through under emergency messages from Governor Smith the American Legion bill which submits to the people at the general election this fall the question of issuing $45,000,000 in bonds to pay bonus to world war veterans. The bill provides a $10 bonus for each month of service with a maximum of $240.

The senate passed and sent to the governor the bill providing for absentee voting in line with the constitutional amendment adopted by the people last fall.

The senate also passed the Fearon bill providing for judicial nominating conventions.

Before the senate adjourned at dawn it defeated the Thompson bill creating a state milk commission to supervise the distribution of milk.

CARDINALS URGE LESS INDULGENCE

The wave of extravagance and indulgence in useless luxuries that has been sweeping over this country during the recent months has brought forth appeals from Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and Cardinal O'Connell of Boston to the people not to dissipate the prosperity the country is now enjoying, in extravagant living, and to conserve for solid future benefits.

In a statement to the savings division of the treasury department, Cardinal O'Connell commended the government for its continuance of the savings movement, and pledged his support to help make it a success.

His statement in part said: "I shall be very glad to co-operate in so far as lies within my power with the savings division of the treasury department in checking the tendency towards extravagance and financial carelessness and in encouraging consistent saving."

In his statement to the people urging economy and the curtailment of unnecessary expenses, Cardinal Gibbons said:

"Every American citizen should realize that the problems arising from the war are individual problems, and can best be solved by careful, frugal living, and the curtailment of unnecessary expenses. The prosperity that has come to us is not ours to be spent lavishly and without regard to consequence, but is to be increased by constant saving, thoughtful investment and wise use. In no other way can we seize upon the opportunity that is presented us, and thus while increasing our own resources, continue to play the good Samaritan to the suffering people in Europe."

WILL ORGANIZE LADIES AUXILIARY

Knigton Post Of American Legion Will Set Aside Night For Women Relatives To Meet—Memorial Building Plans Indefinite—To Secure Flags For Graves.

At the regular meeting of Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion, held Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A., plans were discussed for the forming of a Ladies Auxiliary to be composed of mothers, sisters, wives or daughters of the men who were in the service. President Rudolph C. Dittus will at some future date appoint a committee which will in turn set aside a night for a meeting of the women. At that time the Ladies Auxiliary of Kingston Post will be organized.

The matter of a memorial building to the boys of Ulster county who died while in the service, was discussed but no action was taken. The matter has not yet progressed far enough to take any definite form and this matter will be again taken up before the members of the legion.

It was decided to secure flags for the graves of the men who died in service. These flags will have a suitable standard marked with the name and number of the Post of the legion. The matter of securing grave markers was put over for this year as the Post at the present time has not sufficient funds to provide markers for all of the graves. Suitable markers would cost $5 each. This will be taken up again as soon as there are sufficient funds to secure them. In the marking and decorating of graves of the men who died in service the members of the American Legion will co-operate with the members of the G. A. R. and the Spanish War Veterans.

Following the business meeting the members of Kingston Post were given the privilege of using the various amusements at the Y. M. C. A., and many of the members took advantage of this kindness extended to them.

There were refreshments served and a smoker and social hour enjoyed.
